A Talk on the Wild Side

Graham has been working with wildlife since 1978 and before that was involved with domestic animals, even from an early age. He has a great deal of knowledge and compassion for the subject. He cares and that's what it is all about – "caring".

He has been lecturing on wildlife and its care for over 20 years at schools, colleges, to disabled as well as able-bodied people, to all kinds of clubs and organisations, birthday parties, etc.

The talks have proven to be very popular over the years and Graham is kept very busy. The talks can be tailored to each group's needs.

They are designed to encourage children and adults alike to respect wildlife and in fact all animals, wild or domestic.

The purpose of our talks is twofold. Firstly, to inform young people of the hazards our wildlife has to cope with in the world. We outline the different species, discuss the problems involved in looking after injured, orphaned and sick animals and stress the importance of wildlife, including birds, in Britain. We have a few permanent residents at the Hospital, some of which may accompany us on talks.

Secondly, our purpose is to demonstrate how people of all ages may play an active role in the conservation of Britain's wildlife and to protect and improve the environment, not just for their own benefit, but for future generations as well.

At the end of our talks, "Question Time" frequently reveals the genuine concern and enthusiasm young people already have for this subject.

Our charges for talks vary, and can be tailored to your specific requirements. If you would like a visit to your school, club or social event, please contact us using the form enclosed and we shall be happy to discuss suitable arrangements.

All over Britain, wildlife is suffering

Animals such as the tiny natterjack toad, the barn owl, the badger and even the hare – all once prolific in Britain – are now endangered and struggling for their survival.

Even the red deer and the fox – animals not generally considered to be under threat – are in potential danger.

Sadly it is Man's activities and lack of awareness that threaten them. New roads and bigger towns steal their environment. Breeding patterns are disrupted and animals are victim to traffic accidents, pollution and changes in farming methods.

"Points on Pets" is another animal subject that is close to Graham's heart. How well do you look after your pets? Whether it is a mouse, guinea pig, rabbit, rat, cat or dog, they must have care and attention from their owners throughout their lives.

When folks go to buy a pet, they need to consider accommodation, bedding, feeding, veterinary care etc. Who will care for it when you go on holiday? A pet will take time and money. It will be a member of your family for its whole life.
